

Seeking positive outcomes for investors and society

Combining global, high-conviction credit investing with SDG-aligned engagement, we seek long-term outperformance and positive impact.

Mitch Reznick, CFA, Head of Research and Sustainable Fixed Income and Co-Portfolio Manager, Federated Hermes SDG Engagement High Yield Credit Fund

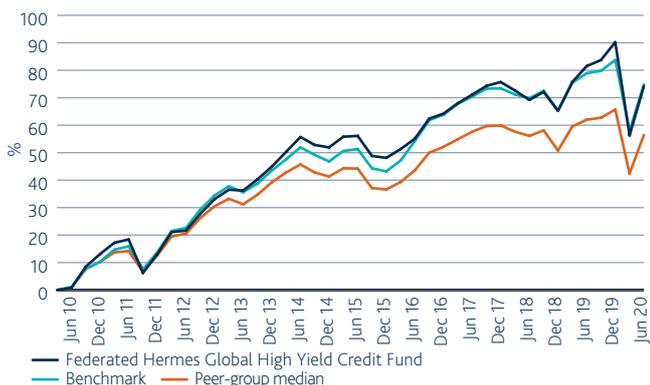

Why us?

The Fund aims to outperform the global high-yield market through high-conviction investment in companies with strong fundamentals that also demonstrate the potential, through engagement, to create positive change. We use the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) – an ambitious, universal set of objectives seeking global prosperity and environmental integrity by 2030 – as a framework for engagement. We believe that bondholder engagement supports the long-term viability and investment performance of businesses while also benefiting society and the environment. The global high-yield market offers great opportunities to identify companies with the willingness and ability to change their operations, products or services in order to generate additional benefits for society and the environment. Most high-yield issuers are yet to focus on creating positive change, enabling us to play an important role in their efforts to become impactful while also delivering attractive returns to investors.

- ✓ SDG investing: Our engagements seek positive change that strengthens the long-term performance of companies, sustaining both impact and corporate profitability.
- ✓ Future leaders: By investing and engaging to create change, we seek tomorrow's impact leaders rather than focus on those of today.
- ✓ Investment strength: Since 2004, the team's principal members have delivered attractive high-yield credit returns through relative-value investing across the capital structures of companies worldwide.
- ✓ Engagement depth: Our dedicated engagers are supported by EOS at Federated Hermes, a leading global stewardship team, and the pioneering Hermes Responsibility Office.

Investment approach

The Fund aims to generate long-term, risk-adjusted outperformance by investing in attractive high-yield credit instruments and engaging with the underlying companies to generate positive impacts that support the SDGs. To achieve this, we combine the global, dynamic investment approach developed by our Credit team with the engagement skills of the Fund’s dedicated engagers and EOS, our firm’s stewardship team.

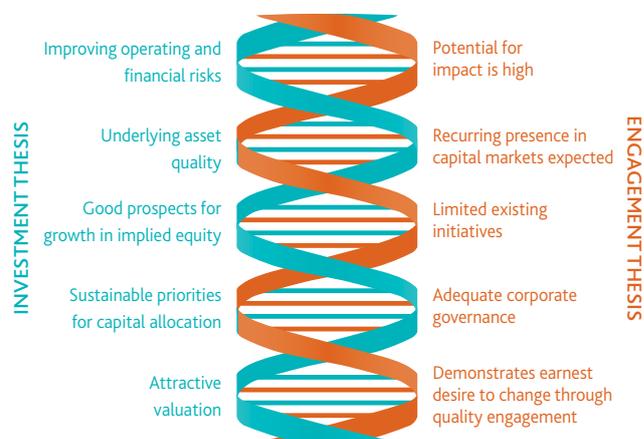

Portfolio companies must meet specific investment and engagement criteria. Each should have supportive fundamentals, cash-generative operations and be trading at attractive valuations. Their business lines, supply chains or product or service offerings must provide a foundation to create SDG-aligned impact, and their executive teams and boards must be willing to enter the long-term, transformative process of engagement. Each business must have a stable shareholder base and a long-term vision that shows a willingness to effect positive change. Our high-conviction, bottom-up security-selection process results in a portfolio of long-term holdings aligned with the duration of our engagements with the underlying businesses. By investing flexibly, we target opportunities to generate strong returns and income across geographies, instrument types and credit curves.

To gauge the opportunity for generating SDG-aligned impact, we use a one-to-five scoring system that assesses the credit fundamentals of a company and the scale of the opportunity to create change. Our scores are reviewed and changed in response to changes to the relevant investment and engagement theses, and portfolio holdings and position sizes are adjusted accordingly.

Believing that long-term bond and equity investors have a mutual interest in the sustainable growth of companies – which requires strong corporate governance and positive influence on society and the environment – we seek opportunities to collaborate with other financial stakeholders on objectives related to the SDGs.

Profitability and positive change: two halves of the whole

To sustain positive change, impactful companies must be profitable. We therefore seek companies with attractive long-term investment fundamentals as well as the potential to play significant roles in helping to achieve the SDGs.
